Built by Shamus Walsh, this 1987 classic has been thoughtfully updated inside and out, showcasing a stylish reverse layout that enhances both space and light. Large windows throughout the boat—and a striking duck hatch—fill the interior with natural light, creating an airy, welcoming feel. Parsival is a lovely, well-presented vessel, ideal as a liveaboard or leisure cruiser, with plenty of scope to add your own personal touch.

The kitchen is a beautiful blend of rustic style and modern convenience. It features colourful, eye-catching tile splashbacks, vintage-style taps, and a deep sink, all set against sleek black granite countertops. A 4-burner gas hob with oven and a 12v fridge make it a practical cooking space. There's generous cupboard storage, plus a large open area directly beyond the galley—ideal for creating a dining area, home office, or additional lounge space, tailored to your needs.

Moving forward, the cosy lounge is centred around a Morso Squirrel multi-fuel stove, perfect for those colder evenings. A sofa bed
